Besides defining Mexico's musical identity, ranchera has also touched other Latin music genres, such as bolero and Latin pop. From Paco Michel's "Ay, Chabela" to Jose Alfredo Jimenez's "El Rey," the following 10 ranchera songs have played a large part in making this traditional Mexican music genre so popular, propelling their singers to fame in South, Central, and North America. This spicy classic is one of the most significant contributions that Paco Michel's later interpretation garnered even greater commercial success. As far as Latin music goes, "Entrega Total" falls into the bolero ranchero style, created by one of the most beloved ranchera artists in history, Javier Solis. This track captures the romantic style and sweet voice that Javier Solis brought to ranchera music like no other record he's released. If you're looking for an introduction to Solis' particular brand of ranchero, look no further than this 1964 song. "La Media Vuelta," sometimes spelled "La Media Buelta," is a song originally written by Jose Alfredo Jimenez, probably the most influential ranchera songwriter in history. Still, Antonio Aguilar's version remains the most popular. In addition to being one of Latin music's greatest talents, Aguilar also went on to star in several Mexican films and was awarded the Golden Ariel for his "invaluable contribution and spreading of Mexican cinema" in 1997. In recent years, Luis Miguel's interpretation of "La Media Vuelta" consolidated the appeal of this top ranchera hit, making it readily accessible to audiences across the Americas. For those who do not know, "Las Mañanitas" is the Mexican equivalent of "Happy Birthday." If we had to pick the one ranchera song that has touched Mexican culture in the most significant way, it would be "Las Mañanitas." Ironically, though, the origins of this essential piece of Mexican folklore are still unclear. Take your pick of famous Mexican music artists—Vicente Fernández, Banda Machos, and even Javier Solis—and they will likely have covered this track at one time or another in their career. Still, Pedro Infante's version ranks among the most popular and is definitely worth a listen. Juan Gabriel is an icon of Mexican music. Even though he is primarily known for his romantic ballads and Latin pop songs, Gabriel has built most of his success around Mexican mariachi music. "Te Lo Pido Por Favor" is one of the most beautiful ranchera songs of the Juan Gabriel died of a heart attack in 2016, but the legacy of his 20 studio albums and countless live recordings lives on. They still get just as much artists. Even pop icons Enrique Iglesias and Luciano Pavarotti covered this track together at a special concert in 2000. In addition to featuring beautiful lyrics, "Cielito Lindo" is a prime example of traditional Mexican music, with trumpets, horns, and percussion highlighting the unique style of ranchera no matter who covers the track. During the 1980s, Juan Gabriel, together with Spanish singer Rocio Durcal, produced several ranchera songs in a more modern vein. Thanks to "Dejame Vivir," the duo became a musical phenomenon throughout Latin America until they stopped touring together to once again pursue their solo careers. Although both Juan Gabriel and Rocio Durcal have left this world, Gabriel in 2016 and Durcal in 2016, their version of "Dejame Vivir" still ranks as one of the most popular songs ever produced. Originally written by the prolific songwriter Federico Mendez Tejeda, it became a tremendous hit thanks to Vicente Fernandez, whom many consider the king of ranchera music. Although the English translation of the track's lyrics starts with "The day I found you I fell in love," this song is anything but uplifting. Instead, it illustrates the singer's heartache as he jumps through hoops "for your damn love," this song is anything but uplifting. With weeping vocals and a light cacophony of Mexican instrumentation, "Mujeres Divinas" laments the frustrations of falling in love with women, who are all divine in their own ways. Still, as the last lyric of the English translation implies, "There's not another way than adoring them." Another top ranchera hit by the gifted songwriter Jose Alfredo Jimenez, this song is one of the most popular ever recorded. "El Rey" is very often associated with Vicente Fernandez, thanks to his enduring interpretation, but the original version carries just as much weight in the modern world of Latin music. Film: 'Ragini MMS' and consent to receive emails from the consent to receive em 2' (2014) How exactly has Bollywood change? Well, the track will give you an idea. Controversial Punjabi rapper Yo Yo Honey Singh waxes lyrical about the virtues of drinking four bottles of vodka (the chours goes: 'I want a hangover tonight') over this dissonant hip hop club beats, which also features Canadian-Indian porn star Sunny Leone. Sure parents hate him, maily for the slackness of his lyrics and for encouraging their sons to dress 'inapprpriately', but the kids love him, as proven by this track's millions and millions of views. Film: 'Dilwalhe Dulhania Le Jayenge' (1995) The song from the most romantic film in a generation 'TDTYJS' nods to Bollywood's wholesome days of yore with playback singers Kumar Sanu and Lata Mangeshkar as star-crossed lovers Raj (Shah Rukh Khan) and Simran (Kajol) are reunited in Punjab's glorious fields. They declare they'll die in each other's arms amid costume changes, location switches (to the Alps), and dream-sequence montages. The combo of glorious melodies, soaring strings and the innocent purity of Lata's voice has been a Bollywood staple for decades. After all, if it ain't broke... Film: 'Awaara' (1951) Raj Kapoor is the father of cinema in post-colonial India. The actor and director was behind a flurry of hits in the 1950s and 1960s - including 'Awaara' - and key to film becoming central to India's cultural imagination. The song 'Awaara Hoon' sees the actor cheerfully sing about being a drifter, tapping into the Partition of 1947 that saw around 10 million people displaced. His everyman charisma touched a nerve, and versions of this song appeared in the Soviet Union and China, with Chairman Mao reportedly a big fan of both film and song.
